TDM COURSE EXCEPTION APPLICATION FORM

By TDM approval, up to 2 courses outside of the approved TDM Course List can count towards concentration requirements. Applications for an exception must include a course syllabus, which should demonstrate that at least 50% of the course material is related to theater, dance, media and/or performance.

Of these 2 possible course exceptions, one (1) course exception may also be for a course in which less than 50% of the syllabus is related to performance, so long as 1) the application demonstrates how the course is directly related to a TDM senior thesis, and 2) the course is a pure elective and not used to fulfill other degree requirements for the College, another concentration, or secondary field beyond the number of total or graded credits. For example, a student pursuing a thesis on performance and sustainability may apply for a course in environmental studies by demonstrating how the course materials might inform their thesis.

Only sole, double, or joint concentrators are eligible for course exceptions; secondary fields are not eligible.
